

Accountability Guide

Getting into an accountability relationship as a Christian is really important. God never intended for us to live the Christian life as a lone ranger. He wants us to have Godly people in our lives who can encourage us, confront us, challenge us, and pray for us, and for whom we can do the same. It's Awesome! That's what an accountability relationship is all about - helping each other live 100% for Jesus. And we want to help you do that. So here are some guidelines on how to have an effective accountability relationship.

A. Pray and ask God to lead you to the right person who will be your "Accountability Partner".

B. Once you have asked that person and he/she has agreed to be your "Accountability Partner" (***) Make sure that person is the same gender as yourself (***) , agree on a regular meeting time and place. We suggest trying to meet once a week.

C. At your meeting with your "Accountability Partner", follow this format.

1. Ask each other these questions.

a. How is your daily quiet time? (Bible reading and prayer)

b. How is your thought life?

c. Are you being a good influence in your relationships?

d. Are you living in complete obedience to Jesus in every area of your life?

e. Have you been completely honest in answering the above questions?

2. Spend some time sharing praises and prayer requests.

3. Spend some time praying for each other.

4. Choose a verse of Scripture you will both work on memorizing by your next meeting.

These are only some suggested guidelines to use. You can add others. The important points are to be totally honest with each other, stay focussed during your meeting time, and always remember the goal: to help each other love Jesus and live 100% for Him! Now Go For It!! and watch what God does.
